INTRODUCTION

When Mr. Asher in 1867 published his Bibliographical and Historical Essay containing the titles of 357 pamphlets bearing on the history of New-Netherland, the West-India Company etc., he had examined more than 27000 pamphlets, which all had been published between 1600-1664, the period of the rise, the decline and fall of the Company which founded New-Netherland, and whose history is therefore so much valued by the student of early American History.

At the beginning of the 17th Century, when Holland had risen to the rank of a great power, Usselincx, the genial merchant, schemed his great plan, viz. the foundation of the West-India Company.

«William Usselincx», Mr. Asher says «brought to America the nation in which the principle of free communities (the vital principle of American liberty) was carried out to its full extent».

But his plans were thwarted by the negociations about a truce with Spain, which would make the West-India company impossible by the forbidding of all attacks on the Spanish settlements.

Usselincx wrote a series of pamphlets against this truce which belong to the most remarkable productions of that class of literature; in vain, only in 1621 when war with Spain was renewed the career of the Company could begin.

Three successes of truly historical importance mark the first ten years of the Company's existence. The Taking of the Bahia in 1624, which however had to be given up again the next year (sec. n<sup>o</sup> 69 of our catalogue), the capture of the Silverfleet in 1628. (see. nos 70-72) and the conquest of Fernambuco and the whole of the Portuguese possessions to the north of Olinda in 1630 (sec. n<sup>o</sup> 90).

From 1630-1642 these Brasilian conquests went steadily on interrupted only by one single check, Curaçao was taken and New-Netherland, the Company's North-American Colony grew more and more prosperous. Then however, badly supported, by the Government, it could no longer resist the Portuguese who moreover found allies even among the Company's officers; Count Maurice of Nassau, one of the ablest men of the 17th century, finding opposition where he expected support, left Brasil in 1644 and ten years later the troops had to evacuate the country. During these latter years battles were fought which, as for the number of dead and wounded, were not less murderous than those occurring in the colonial wars of our present time (see. nos 135, 136, 141, 142).

M176510

The Company's fate drew nearer every year till the death-blow was struck in 1664 when New-Netherland, the Company's last valuable possession, was conquered by the English (see. n° 197).

These pamphlets, the documents for American history, were rare at Mr. Asher's time, several of them have now become almost undiscoverable. The «Breedde-Raedt» (see. n° 195) to which Mr. Asher dedicates pp. 183-200 of his Essay, was considered one of the most costly pieces of the Exhibition held during the International Congress of Publishers at Amsterdam in 1910. And many more of our Catalogue will seldom if ever be offered for sale again, considering that there are those which Mr. Asher in his scrupulous searching did not come across: which are not even to be found among the 20,000 pamphlets of the Royal Library at The Hague, (described by Dr. W. P. C. Knuttel) or as far as we have been able to ascertain, in any other Public or Private library.

Nos 1, 2 (two editions), 3, 4 (three editions), 5 (two editions), 6, 7 (four editions), 8 (two editions), 9 (four editions), 10 (two editions), 11, 12 (two editions), 13 (two editions), 14, 15, 16 (two editions), 17 (three editions), 18-22, 23 (two editions), 24 (two editions), 25 (two editions), 26-31, 32 (two editions), 33 (two editions), 34-38. — 60 pieces.

Most valuable complete collection of 38 pamphlets published in 1607-08, against the Peace with Spain. They contain precious material for the history of the early commerce of the Hollanders with America, the most interesting of them having been written by Usselinckx.

Asher in his Essay gives the contents of the Collection, numbering 38 pamphlets, but does not mention the 22 different editions which we add to the collection. As early as the 17th century a complete set was rare, and is called in Mr. Fr. Muller's latest Catalogue of 1910 „introuvable" at this time.

- 135 Copie de trois lettres escrites du Bresil par l'Admirail Wit Witsen. Amsterdam n. d. [1648] 4°.

In the first letter the writer, who must be the famous admiral Witte Corneliszoon de With, complains of the bad state in which the vessels are; hardly fit to cross the ocean. He states that the colony will soon be reduced to the greatest misery, the inhabitants are starving not being able to do any business at such a state of things. In the second letter of July 20th the admiral criticizes the conduct of the commander of the army who consequently suffered a loss of 1100 men dead and wounded in the battle of April 18th. In his third letter of the 27th he gives information about the doings of the fleet.

These letters were not known to Asher nor did we anywhere find them mentioned. They give information of the highest interest for the history of the West India Company. The writer finding thad his advice was not listened to, returned to Holland, and was put into prison for having deserted his post. This again lead to the conflict between the Prince of Orange and the Province of Holland. (See: de Jonge, Geschiedenis van het Nederlandsche Zeewezen).

„Holland in its immense activity, not content with its commerce to both the Indies, and with the flourishing settlements was continually seeking to augment its power. This accounts for the numerous colonies we see planned every year. The colony of John Reeps is one of those works we are surprised to find any trace of in history, so much it was lost sight of among greater and more succesful speculations. The extreme scarcity of this pamphlet has prevented persons more competent than ourselves from giving their opinion on the history of this colony; and it is almost the duty of those men in America who devote their studies to make the history of the new world known to us, to give us some details of this almost forgotten country".
